

Even though most people consider INTERSCHUTZ in Hanover, Germany, to be the world's most important trade show for all things concerning successful fire brigade operations, it has become a huge melting pot for all things to do with fire protection in general.

The show takes place every five years, and is an internationally well frequented meeting point for global suppliers and demand. A multitude of new fire-fighting and civil protection products, systems and solutions are presented.

PYROsmart® is still a young brand in this environment. It is not only the early fire detection capacity which interests visitors, but also the special software interface to control monitors.

Potential fire risks are countered with automatic extinguishing, and the fire is stopped at inception. Once the fire brigade take over from the automatic system, e.g. to fight an incident at a warehouse, they can use the joystick to control the monitor from a safe distance and position.

Apart from the Orglmeister stand in hall 13, visitors were able to get an impression of how PYROsmart® and monitor interact at the generous Rosenbauer International AG booth in hall 27. Here, the market leader in fire brigade equipment presented its growing "stationary fire protection" department, displaying the innovative infrared-based temperature monitoring system PYROsmart® in combination with the automatic control of the Rosenbauer monitors.

Current project references were also presented, two of which give some more detail on this innovative co-operation.
